TWO MOM-INVENTED PRODUCTS MAKE SUMMER TRIPS WITH KIDS LIGHTER, EASIER AND CLEANER

South Florida – Summertime means playgrounds and the beaches: fun for kids, but heavy duty for parents with lots of messes to clean up and gear to lug around.

Two mom-invented products are helping make outdoor summer journeys easier, faster and cleaner.

A downsized diaper purse called My Royal Heinie, makes cleaning up ice cream drips easy with its patented Smart Wipes Dispenser, where wipes are loaded and pulled right from the front of the bag.

The only double-sling designed baby carrier, Baby K'tan helps parents carry their babies, without all the confusing loops or wraps of other carriers.

The My Royal Heinie Daypack is designed for a day's outing, fitting just what you need to get you through the day in a compact bag that won't weigh you down. You can even strap to your stroller.

"I feel 10 pounds lighter and my husband is happy that he doesn't have to massage my 'diaper bag-injured' shoulders anymore," says New York City mom Erika Drennan.

Baby wearing has become a hot trend. But many of the carriers are too complicated, too hot or don't offer back support that's needed to make them useful.

Baby K'tan, the only sling for twins, is made out of 100 percent breathable cotton. If you sweat in it, no problem, throw it in the washer at the end of the day.

"Wearing the Baby K'tan is like driving in the HOV lane when everyone else is stuck in traffic," said Samantha and Chaim Hirsch, a South Florida couple.

What the experts say about Baby K'tan

“Studies have proven that wearing your baby will facilitate mental growth and development, and using a Baby K'tan will promote the carrying for much longer due to its versatile functionality, ease of use and strength limit, as compared to the other carriers on the market,” said Andrew S. Rubin, Ph.D., child psychologist and professor in child development and infant mental health at Nova Southeastern University in Davie, Florida.

ABOUT BABY K'TAN, LLC

Baby K'tan, LLC, is a privately owned company based in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Established in January 2007, the Baby K'tan Baby Carrier was developed by two couples, each raising three kids in Florida. One family has a child with Down syndrome and the other has a child who required heart surgery when he was four weeks old.

The four parents – a day trader, a biologist, an aeronautics salesman, and an attorney -- were driven to invent Baby K'tan when none of them could find an existing baby carrier that suited their babies' needs. The Baby K'tan team proudly devotes a percentage of its proceeds to the American Heart Association and to organizations that assist individuals and families living with Down syndrome.

The Baby K'tan Baby Carrier is available at independent and mass retailers stores across the U.S. and Canada, and online at <http://www.babyktan.com>, and in select Target stores.
